Contained in this book are perhaps the most unassailable proofs of God ever discovered. They are objective, scientifically sound, and otherwise inexplicable.

Yet, the current discussion of science and religion - even as conducted by well-known figures - could be at least 10 years behind the times. A major reason for this is the focus on western faiths and the convenient exclusion of amazing eastern beliefs - especially the cosmic beliefs of ancient yoga.

Is yoga emerging as the spiritual and holistic Tao of all Sciences? Here's the evidence: remarkable discoveries reveal accurate, detailed, and objective observations of the universe given by ancient yogis.

Says the Big Bang cosmologist and Stanford physicist Andrei Linde, "When I was studying Indian philosophy I was extremely excited that what they say sometimes is painfully close to what I think."

Did you know that ancient yogis described the following modern discoveries in remarkable detail, also giving accurate timelines in millions or billions of years?

1. The Big Bang
2. Formation of Galaxies
3. Past and Future Evolution of our Sun
4. Deep-Sea Hydrothermal Vents
5. Permian-Triassic Worldwide Extinction of Life

Sounds impossible, doesn't it? How could the yogis achieve such a thing? All their descriptions are between 1000 to 3000 years old, long before the scientific era. And these subjects are supposed to be impossible to know without the tools of modern science.

These parallels of ancient eastern thought and modern discoveries are physical, specific, and unambiguous. And these parallels could transform the discussion of science, spirituality, and religion across our planet.

But rarely are you informed about yoga's scientifically harmonious beliefs concerning life, our world, and universe. Or hear about their implications for the existence of some form of God, universal or higher consciousness, spiritual realm, or heaven - or whatever you may wish to call that mystical experience.

Rarely, also, do you hear about the connections of yoga's beliefs with instances in the Bible.

For instance:

While some scholars argue over the length of the 7 Days of Creation in the Bible, ancient yoga provides passages that resolve it. As commentators argue over the construction of Noah's ark, ancient yoga provides passages that describe the Permian-Triassic global extinction, its timeline beginning 250 million years ago, and subsequent continental flooding. As apologists struggle over belief in a compassionate God and the existence of pain, ancient yoga provides methods to transcend it.

Sanjay C Patel - who is a peer-reviewed researcher and a former monk of 20 years - aims to undo the one-sided discussion of science and religion and bring the whole truth to your attention for your perusal.

Sanjay's scholarly discoveries are amongst the few on spirituality to achieve publication in peer-reviewed, mainstream, international scientific journals such as INSA (The Indian National Science Academy) India, IMarEST (The Inst. of Marine Engineering, Science and Technology) UK, and ICHS (The Intn. Congress of Historians of Science) China. They have also been vetted by a cosmology writer for The University of Cambridge (UK) and The Scientific American journal (USA).

You can't get more objective and authentic 'science meets religion' connections than these.

So why aren't they headline news? If they were exclusively from the Bible or Quran, perhaps they would be. But the discussion and reportage is lop-sided.

Since a fair discussion of science and religion should be larger than only the faiths of the west, these remarkable similarities between science and the spiritual beliefs of ancient yoga - and their connections with the Bible - will transform the way you understand this highly important subject.
