Sinopsis: The beginning of the twentyfirst century is marked by hardships and calamity. Yet, hardships are not created to bring calamity over men. They bring meanings to our life. It's not the event that matters most, but how we perceive it and turn it into something beautiful. Life is like a symphony. It's made of different instruments (happiness – sadness, success – failure, love – hate, clean – dirty). Greed can't banish our sadness, failure and ungodliness. But we can always turn these things to something else that's good for us. Bad things in life are like compost. It's made of waste, but it does wonders. It makes the flowers grow. The flowers are like the wonderful things we have in life. Healing, happiness, peace and enlightenment.
