The Art and Science of Screenwriting Philip Parker

This text looks at the essential elements of screenwriting, from finding an idea to creating a finished screenplay. The book then goes on to examine the author's own thesis on writing for the screen - that the development of structure and character cannot be separated successfully. It also aims to serve as a handbook for screenwriters at all levels, and shows how to apply creative vision and a focus on the project in hand. There is a section on the needs of the market, and an index to the key points of the text.
